

Angelica Villarta has lived in Las Vegas, NV for over 28 years. Her early career focus was spent primarily in the entertainment industry where she sang and performed in bands in Las Vegas, California, Utah, Hawaii and Guam. She did freelance work as an audience casting director for national television programs, was independently consulted and worked as a production assistant for several celebrity headlining acts including Stevie B and STYX. In addition to the production side of the industry she was heavily involved with booking talent in many of the high-end Nightclubs and for various AAPI and food festivals through her organization Asian Pacific Performing Arts Alliance.

Angelica's career shifted focus in the mid 2000's when the demand for her services, connections and ideas were sought out by community organizations and corporate entities. It was at this time when her career pivoted in the direction of managing relationships for financial and insurance companies, marketing and advertising firms and non-profit organizations. Her years of experience working in relationship management, community fundraising, advocacy and outreach, civic engagement, event management and administration are a conglomerate of talents and knowledge that gain her a unique perspective when it comes to legislative engagement. She currently sits as a Nevada State Commissioner on Minority Affairs co-chairing the Economic and Business Development Committee as well as performs the role as a Secretary for the Board for Water & Energy Humanitarian Relief Fund. She has also been awarded recognition as a Global Goodwill Ambassador.

As the CEO for Blucat Group, Inc. she is a relationship driven professional in her industry, responsible for developing high-level strategies that strengthen the ecosystems for private and public entities, identifying key relationships and/or company assets that have been used to create value for a company and their stakeholders, assisting organizations in recruiting and retaining mission-related partners, public speaking and outreach, as well as instructing and mentoring others in relationship-building.
