

Cavoy V. Laushaul

Cavoy “Coach” Laushaul is a respected man, who has earned the name coach by being a mentor to men young and old, on and off the field. He has worked in many divergent environments. From working with students at a high school to working with men in the minor leagues. Cavoy has mastered valor as both a football coach and an advisor.

His journey began as a senior in high school as an assistant coach at Dawson Elementary School from 1991-1992. The immense amount of skill that Laushaul demonstrated as a high school senior led him straight to the Las Vegas Wolves Professional Minor League Football team. From 1998-2001 he occupied the Defensive Back coaching position and was later named the Defensive Coordinator. Toiling away trying to set the tone for his coaching career, he was aid in winning the SWFL Championship as a first time Defensive Coordinator and received Defensive Coordinator of the Year. Some might think it was luck, but Laushaul definitely revealed otherwise as time passed.

Coming off of that great win, Cavoy was then brought on as the Defensive Coordinator for the Nevada Falcons Professional Minor League Football team. During this time from 2001-2003, they won the ISFL Championship. With his name now ringing through the Football Minor Leagues, Cavoy was able to become the Assistant Head Coach and Defensive Coordinator to the Las Vegas Eastside Cobras Professional Minor League Football team. Hammering away for an undefeated season, Laushaul took this team to become runner up in the CFA Championship game. With numerous awards, unconquered feats, and two championships it was time for the pull ahead.

From 2006-2007 Cavoy was the Co-Owner and Head Coach of the Nevada Ravens Professional Minor League Football team and the General Manager and later Head Coach of the Disciples of Christ (D.O.C) Minor League Football Team. Over the years one can experience passion fatigue, however from 1998 until now, there is NO deviation from coaching. Cavoy has mentored young men to be respectable players, bring your all when on and off of the field. He has given Professional Minor League his all, day in and day out. Admirably mentoring and coaching does not stop at just football. He makes others feel comfortable enough that they could seek help with any of life’s stressors. For that exact reason and more, Laushaul was inducted into the Minor League Football News Hall of Fame in 2007.

In 2008-2009 Laushaul became the Head Coach and Defensive Coordinator for the Vegas Kings Professional Minor League Football team. The newly inducted Hall of Famer became the 2008 Coach of the Year Honors and Cavoy demonstrated very clearly that he was at the forefront for a reason. He led the Vegas Kings to an unforgettable 7-5 win in their first season playing in the LCFL. A pillar in his community, he has devoted countless time and effort into the community youth football teams across the Las Vegas Valley.

Coming in as a Defensive Coordinator to the Sierra Vista Junior Mountain Lion Little League Football team in 2010, Cavoy quickly moved to become the Defensive Coordinator of the 8th and 9th grade Sierra Vista

Junior Mountain Lion Football team in 2011. He helped lead this team to become 2-time bowl champions and left a lasting impact that allowed him to become the Defensive Backs Coach for Sierra Vista High School Varsity Football team until 2012. Eager to hold a head coaching position again, Cavoy became Head Coach of the Sierra Vista Junior Mountain Lion Little League Football team. In 2013 he held the Head Coach and the Defensive Coordinator position of the Vegas Lions Professional Minor League Football team.

Laushaul then began working with Youth Camps and became a Field Organizer for the All-American High School Combines. He maintained an exceptional 3.6 GPA that allowed him to be placed on the President's List and gained membership into the National Society of Leadership and Success. In between obtaining his Criminal Justice Degree at Southern New Hampshire University and working an innumerable amount of hours for the State of Nevada, Laushaul still managed to be the Defensive Coordinator of the Varsity Football team at Clark High School in 2017-2018.

Being a 2-time FASCO Allstar Defensive Coordinator, a Hall of Famer, Coach of the Year, Owner and Co-Owner of a team is why they call him Coach. Having attended numerous coaching clinics, over 300 hours of film study and playbook organization, practice preparation, and having the grit to go the distance is why they call him Coach. Being a mentor, an advisor, a guide, and for some a father figure is why they call him Coach. Cavoy "Coach" Laushaul has always laid everything on the field and many can attest that he has earned his name through and through.
